

Call for Papers

Macroeconomics and Econometrics Conference University of Birmingham Tuesday 4th and Wednesday 5th May 2010

The Econometrics and Macroeconomics and Finance Research Groups of the Department of Economics in Birmingham are pleased to announce a call for papers for a two-day conference to be hosted by the Department of Economics with generous financial support from the Money, Macro and Finance Research Group.

Submissions will be considered in a broad range of themes, to cover all aspects of monetary policy, finance, and macroeconomic modelling, defined broadly. Both theoretical and empirical papers are encouraged. We would be particularly interested in papers on fiscal policy and papers with a political economy dimension.

The conference will run for two full days and a programme will be available in due course. There will be a dinner on the evening on the 4th May. We have some funds to reimburse speakers their travel costs. Please let us know when submitting your paper if you need such support and also if you would like us to arrange overnight accommodation for you for the night of 4th May.

The deadline for submission of papers is 22nd March and decisions will be made by early April. Papers should be submitted in pdf format by e-mail to a.banerjee@bham.ac.uk and j.fender@bham.ac.uk who may also be contacted for further information.

If you would like to attend the conference without presenting a paper we would be delighted to see you. However, if we are oversubscribed we do reserve the right to say 'no', in which case places will be allocated on a first come, first served basis. Please let Anindya Banerjee or John Fender know as soon as possible and no later than 20th April if you would like to attend the conference and, if so, whether you would like us to arrange overnight accommodation (we cannot guarantee to do this for those who are not presenting papers although we will do our best to be helpful).
